
Mark Your Calendars!

For life science professionals seeking new career options, there's no better place than the Greater Philadelphia Region. And now's there's valuable help to get started.

Career GPS:

Navigating the Job Market in the Greater Philadelphia Region's Entrepreneurial Life Science Community

What:

Half-day session to help displaced management-level life science professionals move their careers forward

Where:

Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania,
Huntsman Hall, Philadelphia

When:

Friday, November 20, 2009
from 8 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Career GPS will include:

- Advice and resources on career transition options
- Overview of entrepreneurship opportunities
- Overview of emerging skills and needs within the life sciences
- Skill mapping exercises
- Career and education guidance
- Advice from support organizations including CROs and outplacement/recruiting firms
- Networking with a wide variety of life sciences colleagues

Get all the details and register online at:

www.bioadvance.com or www.sciencecenter.org

ADVANCE REGISTRATION IS REQUIRED

RSVP at: <https://www.acteva.com/go/careergps>

Presented by

BioAdvance, University City Science Center, Wharton Small Business Development Center and University City Keystone Innovation Zone with funding support from the Delaware Valley Innovation Network and We Work for Health.

Coming in Early 2010:

Entrepreneur On-Ramp, a program to help life sciences professionals with new ideas get businesses up and running and products to the marketplace.

NAVIGATING YOUR LIFE SCIENCE OPTIONS

CAREER
GPS

